Ploutos
2004. Design: Gabriele Assmann

Wealth need not be gone into in great detail. Ploutos proves that: an armchair that expresses her wealth of beauty in small details.

Designer Gabriele Assmann has created a “mythical” beautiful armchair with Ploutos, where she has paid extra attention to the finish. We see that in the prominent seams that follow the curve of the seat and the rotating headrests when she is folded down. She offers just the right comfort with each seat position and each position of the moon-shaped headrests. The rich details of Ploutos have been continued right to the bottom, literally: you can choose for a round tubular slide that follows the contours of the back or for upholstered round legs that are optically separately from the sofa by a magnificent stainless steel slide.

You will recognise real wealth. Choose for the modest mythology of Ploutos.

- Ploutos is available as an armchair on a slide in chromed steel, walnut legs or upholstered legs.
- The Ploutos headrest can be adjusted in 3 positions.
- The shape of the Ploutos enables it to combine perfectly with the Eirene sofa.

Ploutos is the personification of the wealth of Greek mythology. She is usually depicted as a child in the arms of Eirene, the symbol for peace.
